JUNIPERO AVE. IMPROVEMENT

The summer doldrums have not altogether brought a standstill to the attention of the city council to municipal affairs. While the agenda for the regular meeting of next Wednesday night at 7:45 p.m. is not extensive, at least one of the matters is of some consequence.

The council will receive a report from Councilman Herbert Blanks, street commissioner, recommending that the city engineer, Clayton B. Neill, be authorized to prepare an engineering study for the improvement of Junipero Avenue between Seventh and Eighth avenues.

The report is the result of a consultation with Delwyn Roberts of the State Division of Highways, to see if deteriorating and inconvenient conditions on this segment of Junipero might be corrected through expenditure of accumulated gas tax funds, without conforming to what is usually thought to be rigid and unsympathetic state standards for street improvement.

The conference and field inspection, in the findings of Blank's report, confirm the belief that an informal, attractive, yet efficient improvement can be made that would do no mischief to this section of the thoroughfare, which has been in need of improvement for some time.

If the engineer's plans, which may require a one-foot cut at the highest point between Seventh and Eighth, and which would probably preserve the street against the imposition of curbs and gutters, are acceptable both to the council and to the Division of Highways, the work would be undertaken without any local assessment or expenditure from city funds. Sufficient monies are available in the state gas tax funds to finance the entire project to the extent contemplated by the Blanks report.

APPLICATION FOR BED TAX PERMITS

The office of the City Clerk will commence next Wednesday to mail to operators of all hotels, motels, inns, rooming houses, and other places which rent accommodations to transients, applications for hostelry tax permits, so that these places may be licensed by 1 October to collect the 3% "bed tax" recently enacted by the city council.

These applications will have to be returned by 23 September, and the permits, which will issue as fast as the applications are received, will all be out by the 1 October deadline. The application is accompanied by an explanatory letter.

The tax, when effective, is expected to produce $24,500 during the fiscal year 1962-63, since returns will flow in only in the last six months. In the ensuing fiscal year, 1963-64, original projections anticipate nearly $50,000 dollars, which is encumbered entirely for capital outlay purposes, at least 50% of which shall be for objects set forth in the city's general plan.

The clerk's office expects later to issue explanatory material on collection of the tax and the making of returns to the city.

The Great Sand Castle Contest

BY LARRY ROSE

Building a sand castle is an adventure which should not be confined to children. It is a wonderfully youthful experience, of course, and because every child who has ever been near a pile of moist sand has formed up a moated tower of imagery almost instinctively, we tend to look upon the sand castle as a particular property of childhood. But the fascination never leaves us, though the inhibitions of maturity finally constrain us to wistful watching of the young as they build high the crenelated towers of some joyous aspiration we once upon a time knew ourselves.

I think this is to be regretted, particularly since it is unnecessary. I can see no good reason—no reason at all, in fact—why Carmelites, with the boundless resources of our beach and bay and alluring fall weather soon returning, should not gather together and sand-castle for a day. The Pine Cone is, therefore, proposing that Sunday, 23 September, be set aside as sand castle day on Carmel Beach. We propose it because we think it would be an enormous amount of fun; because it would lure many a Carmelite back to the refreshing environment of the beach in a carnival mood; because it would be regrettable to think that the splendor of castles and dreams and bright waves crashing on white sands was merely literary fancy and not literally possible.

As an adventure in which young and old can participate, which lures us for a glorious day to the beauty and freedom of our beach, which puts us to useful and artistic tasks, which stirs up the competitive instincts with innocent purpose—and the world has so few innocent purposes these days — A Great Sand-Castling Contest would be without parallel.

We will, to make sure of this thing, probably issue some challenges: to family groups, to the schools, to the Rotary, Lions, and Kiwanis clubs; to the Youth Center; to architects, artists and builders; to the banks and stores, to enter the day with competitive zeal. If necessary, we will secure use permits from the planning commission. And prizes—Carmel type prizes—will be awarded by perceptive, incorruptible judges—if any can be found.

AMONG THE PINES . . .

Crocker-White Wedding

Sprays of Queen Anne's lace and white summer roses tied with white velvet decorated St. Matthew's Church in San Mateo last Saturday when Suzanne Daphne (Suzie) Crocker became the bride of Anthony Russell White.

The bride, gowned in white Balenciaga satin and wearing the same long, heirloom veil of rosepoint lace worn by her grandmother, carried a cascade bouquet of white orchids and stephanotis. She was escorted to the altar by her brother, Charles Crocker.

The Rev. Leslie Wilder officiated at the 4 o'clock ceremony. Donna Work was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Penny Bunn and Gail Plian. The former two are of Pebble Beach, and Miss Plian is from Minnesota.

They appeared in dresses of pink organza appliqued with red roses. Their rose bouquets were a deep pink hue.

His younger brother Philip was Tony's best man. Phil was standing in for another brother, Richard White, who was unable to attend the wedding. Taking Philip's place as usher was the bridegroom's oldest friend, Norman Scott Fitzgerald of Abilene, Texas, who had earlier declined an usher's role until a last-minute change in plans made his attendance at the rites possible.

Richard was further represented during his absence by his daughter, Donna, five, who served as a flower girl.

Ushers' duties were shared also by Steve Ferrand, Neil Giarratana and Tom Yale.

Decorating the altar during the nuptials were white rubrum lilies and white delphiniums.

For the reception which immediately followed the ceremony in the Burlingame Country Club, the white decor was carried out in a satin table covering and silver bowls of white roses on the bride's table. The pair received their guests before a fireplace banked with maple boughs and ferns.

Tony and Suzie cut a cake from a table swathed in white velvet and trimmed with lilies of the valley. White baskets secured with white velvet ribbon held sprays of white roses at the tables of the wedding guests.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. Norton Adams of New York and the late Dr. Charles Crocker of Pebble Beach, is a graduate of Chatham Hall, Virginia; Bennett College, New York, and attended San Francisco College for Women. Her debut was an event of 1959 at the Burlingame club, which is the former Crocker mansion, home of the bride's grandparents, the late Mr. and Mrs. William Crocker.

She is a sister of Mrs. Earle Maury Elrick of Caracas, Venezuela, and a niece of William W. Crocker, Mrs. Henry Potter Russell, and Mrs. Andre de Limur.

Tony, son of Mrs. Richard McIntyre White of Carmel and the late Mr. White, is a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Anderson of Detroit and Carmel.

A graduate of Carmel schools and a 1961 graduate of Stanford University, the bridegroom is an ensign in the Navy, stationed at Athens, Georgia, terminal point of the couple's Eastern states honeymoon and location of their new home.

Announce Engagement

A newly betrothed couple, Jane Penelope Bunn of Pebble Beach and Robert Thomas Devlin of Pebble Beach and Sacramento, were accepting best wishes from friends this week after the announcement of their engagement Tuesday.

Telling the good news were Penny's parents, Mrs. R. Lent Hooker of Hillsborough and Thomas McConnell Bunn of Pebble Beach.

The bride-elect attended Katherine Delmar Burke School, Wellesley College and the University of California at Berkeley, of which she is a recent graduate. Her sorority is Kappa Kappa Gamma.

Bob, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Coghlan Devlin of Pebble Beach and Sacramento, attended Menlo College and graduated from the University of Arizona.

Brothers and sisters of the bride-elect are Thomas M. Bunn, Jr., Christopher, Clonard, and Josephine Bunn. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Mae Austin of South Pasadena and the late Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan T. Bunn.

Bob is a brother of Mrs. Wesley Parker, Catherine Devlin and Arthur Devlin, Jr.

A date for the forthcoming nuptials has not yet been named.

Ketchums Visit Carmel

A native Carmelite, Nancy Ketchum, who left here when she was three years old, returned last week and was enchanted with her birthplace during a five-day visit. Her father, Sanford Ketchum, an advertising executive in Cleveland, Ohio, returned with Nancy to introduce her to places she had seen only in photographs, and to friends he and his late wife, Marcia, made during World War II, both when he was stationed on the West Coast, and later when Nancy and her mother stayed in Carmel while he was overseas.

Next month, Nancy will return to Colby Junior College in New Hampshire for her senior year.

The next quarterly blood giving day of the Carmel chapter of the American Red Cross marks the first use by the chapter of the new, improved plastic bags for receiving the blood, instead of the glass containers previously used. This has many medical advantages, but involves an added cost of about 75 cents per pint of blood received, which exerts a tremendous financial burden.

All persons between the ages of 18 and 59, who can qualify, are urged to volunteer as blood donors at the Chapter House, Dolores and Eighth, between 10 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. on Thursday, 6 September. Refreshments will be served to all blood donors following their gift of blood.

COLE PORTER AND ALL THAT JAZZ

Anything Goes at Mark Thomas Theater

BY LARRY ROSE

Anything Goes, Cole Porter's durable musical comedy, opened last Friday night at the Terrace Dinner Theatre of the Mark Thomas Inn.

The petite filet mignon was tender and appropriately grilled. A sly and unpretentious Blanchy Graves, '59, proved to be a precocious surprise, though slightly overchilled. The service could be improved, not in force but in tactfulness.

I feel compelled to make these comments on the meal, sensing that I have experienced a whole new dimension in the theater (as they say), and would be woefully remiss if, as a discerning reviewer, I ignored the environment. About a legitimate theater I might comment on the proscenium arch, the condition of the seats or the bullying tactics of the doorman. But this is no legitimate theater. If it were, Trollope with the soup de jour would be as palatable as dessert a la maison and Cole Porter.

The thought that this might ever be attempted is as staggering as it is indigestible.

But musical entertainment as an accompaniment to dinner, more or less as a sixth course; why, yes. I hasten to add that one should not expect the best of both worlds, because they can prove to be strikingly antagonistic to one another when jammed together in the same room. For instance, the play bill and menu are one, providing all sorts of low comedy temptations, such as "who did the costumes in this Breast of Chicken Chateau number?" or "I wonder if the leading lady is fried in the second act?"

But taken with the eyes wide open and the palate not getting too involved, a night at a dinner theater can be interesting.

That's a mighty circuitous route when one is really approaching something quite as direct as Cole Porter, something as naive about the early 30s as this comedy. A veritable museum of the best of Porter—I Get A Kick Out of You; Blow, Gabriel, Blow; You're The Top, and, of course, Anything Goes—the show nonetheless needs something more than good music to rip off the ennui which sets in after a heavy meal not followed by a walk around the block. This production does not have it. Though brilliantly costumed and eagerly presented, it pretty much failed on opening night to strike a spark.

I must hasten to make some exceptions to my general remarks. Lloyd Jenkins, as Sir Evelyn Oakleigh, was charming, absurd and a damned clever actor. G. Kenna McClure has the equipment to become particulary accomplished. His voice has some particularly promising qualities; he has a "feel" for the preposterousness of musical comedy. He has, indeed, a theatrical agility of some promise.

I wish Ruth Rumble had a singing voice the equal of her most mobile and enchanting presence. She is so enthusiastically at home, in a boldly innocent way, when cavorting with the impudence of a musical comedy role.

Everytime the chorus was brought on stage for a number the show brightened briefly, but this only resulted in an even more disappointing contrast when the number was over.

I don't know. Perhaps it was the stage. The cast had to sing and play to two audiences, largely obscured from one another, in two rooms facing the stage at 90 degrees. Janus alone might have been able to sing to both, but not these more probable humans. Searching for a reason above all other reasons why this show never got buttoned up, in spite of great efforts, I have become convinced that it is this:

The first purpose of theater is to enchant an audience, and never to break the thrall. But when during the highly chemical and emotional processes involved in setting off an audience's credulity the cast must alternately abandon and solicit the attention of two separate groups, the alchemy of entertainment is completely overpowered by logistical demands.

White Oaks Cast Brings New Life To 45 Minutes From Broadway

BY MARJORY LLOYD

An old musical, George M. Cohan's 45 Minutes from Broadway, first produced in 1906, is being revived by a youthful and well-trained group of actors and singers at White Oaks Summer Theatre in Carmel Valley. And revived is the right word for their spirited presentation of the melodrama set to music which opened last week. Young voices brought renewed life to tunes beloved for half a century, and members of the audience left the show humming and singing, revived, too.

There is little to be said for the book of 45 Minutes except that as the forerunner of American musical comedies, it couples melodrama with vaudeville and the result is plenty of action, some rousing songs, and laughter.

Singing and acting laurels in the White Oaks production go to Ronn Mullen as Kid Burns and Jeanne Bartlett as Mary Jane Jenkins, his beloved. The latter tears up a claim to a million dollars to prove her love. They give real meaning to the songs, Mary's A Grand Old Name, Always Leave Them Laughing When You Say Goodbye, and When We Are M-A-Double-R-I-E-D.

Hazel Greene deserves praise for her ridiculous role of old Mrs. Purdy, also her incredibly realistic make-up. Not so fortunate was Lee Melville's make-up for his aged butler part. Martin Gregg amusingly twittered as James Blake, a public administrator and man about town. Daniel Cronin was a smooth crook. Mary Sue Tatum as Flora Dora Dean drew laughs with her howls of anguish. Martha McFarland, as her mother, again proved her worth as a comedienne and her ability to belt out a song when, with the villain, she rendered Nothing New Beneath The Sun.

Handsome Tom Bennett (Roger Gentry), who continues in the musical to be a millionaire because of Mary Jenkins's generous destruction of a will, pleased with his singing, too, especially with the pretty ladies of the ensemble in Popular Millionaire and with his fiance Flora, in Cohan's Pet Names.

Jonathan Hugger, Robert Talmadge and John Gordon nimbly hoofed and sang We're The Gentlemen of the Press, assisted by Arthur Conn, a policeman. The pretty, colorfully costumed ladies of the ensemble were Maria Anderson, Tani Bowman, Toni Brandt, Laddy Kratky, Lydia Morrison, and Verna Winters. They sang the theme song, 45 Minutes From Broadway, with Kid Burns, and So Long Mary with the witty and lovely Miss Jenkins. Musical accompaniments were played by Chris Nance, pianist, Ed Mortimer, bass viol, and Paul Callaghan, drums.

Rue Knapp, a member of the faculty of music at San Francisco State College, directed 45 Minutes from Broadway as the first presentation at the Carmel Valley barn theatre of a series of musicals which have influenced the development of this form of entertainment in the United States. Others will be produced in following summers.

The current offering is the last of this season's shows at White Oaks Summer Theatre. Its run will include Labor Day.

Carmel Musicians Attend S. F. Meeting

Two Carmel musicians attended the opening meeting of the California State Federation of Music Clubs last week in San Francisco. Mrs. Walter Alfred de Martini, local harpist known professionally as Mary Rosalie Haslett, served as publicity chairman. The Reverend H. M. M. Nicholas of All Saints' Episcopal Church, concert violinist and founder of the Harmony Hill quartet, was chairman of the church music section. Both are members of the board of directors of the Carmel Bach Festival.

Mrs. Karl G. Rohrer of Palo Alto presided. During the past two years she has made a signal contribution to the work of the federation in the field of assistance to young artists. This summer, as a member of the Bach Festival Committee, she alerted several of the soloists of the silver anniversary festival to their privilege to compete locally, and possibly nationally, for the substantial scholarships offered by the federation, and for the opportunity to appear with a famous orchestra.

Miss Mary Lindsay - Oliver of Carmel is a life member of the federation.

No Dull Moments In Circle's Current Comedy, Critic's Choice

BY MARJORY LLOYD

Critic's Choice, the Ira Levin comedy which opened Friday at the Golden Bough Circle Theatre, played to sold out houses all week end, a tribute to Director Frederick Rider's choice of a contemporary play to follow two classical drama presentations on the arena stage.

Slow-paced and seemingly underplayed in the first act, the action of the farce accelerated during the second act and in the third built up an emotional crescendo, then ended on a happy, humorous note.

However, nowhere did the action become frenzied, a fault of poor comedy direction. Instead, the mounting pace with controlled responses achieved reality, poignant and humorous. The plot, with less sensitive handling, could well have been a meaningless romp.

Particularly, was this sensitivity evident in the amusing scene in which Rick Beck-Meyer as Parker Ballantine, top New York drama critic, sought to drown in alcohol his conscience, and the hurt occasioned by a defiant wife.

In the play, he is brought to this state by Angela (Constance Hood), his second wife, who one morning at breakfast in their Washington Square apartment decides to write what he knows will be an impossible play.

Despite her husband's facetious discouragements, Angela finishes the play, disregards his honest evaluation of it, finds a producer, then gets in an amorous tangle with a brash director, Dion Kapakos, played by Sam Matar.

All this places her spouse in the awkward dilemma of having to deal the death blow to the drama, probably also to their marriage, if he writes a truthful review; or repeat mistakes which confused and finally wrecked his first marriage to an actress, Ivy London, a role taken by Loel Shuler.

Embroideries on this plot encompass the intervention of Ballantine's mother-in-law, Charlotte Orr (Florence Dormody), and of his precocious young son by his first marriage, John Ballantine (Yates Downes), also the determined efforts of his first wife to recapture him.

This excellently selected cast threads in and out of situations designed to create laughter and delivers sophisticated dialogue with amusing aptness. They never miss adroitly showing glimpses of the reverse face of comedy when the plot so demands—and there is never a dull moment.

Carleen Flynn as Essie, a maid with all too brief appearances, completes the cast. The set, supposedly a smart apartment in black and white decor, leaves much to the imagination. However, an ingenious use of screening and lights permits the audience to see into Ballantine's office on another level. Costuming is pleasing.

Especially delightful are Florence Dormody's acting and appearance. Her interpretation of Angela's mother ups the tone of Critic's Choice every moment she is on the stage.

Young Yates Downes, in a difficult role, creates a lovable precocious child . . . and there aren't many such.

Attractive Constance Hood is a trifle too controlled in some of her portrayals of Angela. Beck-Meyer's Ballantine needs a little more urbane polish except in the last act, then he's perfect in his quiet but forceful sincerity.

Matar's playing of Dion Kapakos and Loel Shuler's Ivy London are entirely believable, and amusing.

The production staff consists of Carleen Flynn, stage manager; Barbara Tripp, decor; Jim Pruitt, Jr., lights and sound; Church Chappell, scene construction.

Critic's Choice will be repeated this week end and subsequent week ends. Last week end's filled houses indicates that early reservations will be necessary for the rest of the run.

Sport Cars

BY ED LESLIE

A rally (American for rallye) is a driving test over a predetermined route at speeds within the law. Let me emphasize safety at once, before your wife decides that "you are not about to go racing around the area."

Routes are chosen for their scenic beauty, lack of traffic and generally enjoyable motoring. Speeds are set with changes every so often, to keep you completely under control and out of congested and dangerous areas. A hard and fast rule is that under no circumstances do you exceed the speed limit or drive other than reasonably and prudently!

So-o-o, what you do, after being certain that your car has a seat belt for each occupant, a fire extinguisher, first aid kit and flares, is to convince someone who can read to ride along with you. With a watch, some paper, perhaps even a map, you are ready to go.

You will be handed a few pages of instructions to tell you where to aim your car as you leave the start. Record the starting time and mileage. Ask your navigator how fast you are supposed to average on that "leg," and sort of try to hold that speed on your speedometer. Soon you may read an instruction, "turn left at Texaco station," or "bear left at 'Y' west of Rocky Point." Do it.

Just as you think you have it all figured your navigator will scream, "you should have changed to forty miles per hour back at Jamesburg!"

Heh, heh, heh.

Finally you decide that you're a little behind the average required, so you hold a bit higher throttle for a few minutes, settling down at 40 mph.

Around the corner you suddenly encounter a checkpoint. Here, a couple of rally officials have a card table, clock and checkpoint insignia, where you must stop to check your time against the master schedule. Eventually you reach the finish line, where you argue with other drivers the merits of the event, the demerits of the rallymaster, and struggle to get back on good terms with your navigator.

Next time you go rallying you probably feel the urge to get a little bit "cute." You bring a time and-distance computer, a circular slide rule, or maybe a chart with all of the average speeds set down. Really working at it, you'll probably get lost and completely goof up. Then, too, you'll discover some of the little "diversions" the rallymaster can dream up, little aids such as speed given in knots or kilometers; or two sets of instructions, so that every other car goes by slightly different routes and speeds; or the secret checkpoint, which you pass without knowing that you are clocked in.

I remember a couple of events during which the Monterey Police Department loaned the club their radar speed detector. It caught me at four mph above the average, and I was certain I had won. Oh, the gimmicks are endless. Often the whole rally is set up with only snapshots of the next turn or stop. or playing cards composing a poker hand, which must be picked up one at a time at the various checkpoints. Variations such as these are the key to continued interest, in method as well as locale. You will see places you've never seen before, drive in company with others, laugh and relax, and find out, incidentally, why sports cars are built.

You will enjoy this sport of motoring. Try it.

Jean Ariss To Autograph Her New Novel Saturday

Jean Ariss has chosen the Monterey Peninsula, Huckleberry Hill in particular (although neither is ever mentioned), as the setting for her second novel, The Shattered Glass, just released by Alfred A. Knopf. The wife of Bruce Ariss, a local artist, she is the mother of five children. On Saturday, 2-5:30 p.m., Mrs. Ariss will autograph copies of her book in The Wells' book store on Ocean Avenue, owned by her friend, Henry Meade Williams.

The Shattered Glass is the love story of an alcoholic architect and a woman he meets on the beach, sorrowful following the funeral of her son.

Their self-destructive association is powerfully described. In the end the woman admits love is not enough — or else her love is not enough—to reclaim the man from his serfdom to alcoholism. She steels herself, at last, to "No more watching, worrying, weeping, wandering;" realizes her desire and need for the living man will recede in time, even as it would if he were dead.

But before this decision is made, repeated blows of harrowing emotion shatter her love. This sharding is portrayed in live dialogue or direct uncloyed descriptive phrases.

In trust and with faith, the woman believes the man has been wrongly hospitalized by a domineering father. When he has delirium tremens, she thinks she has poisoned him with mushrooms gathered in the fields. The physician she calls in fear shows her the truth in an empty bottle.

The man responds to psychiatric care she persuades him again to seek. The woman's hope soars. It is brought crashing to the depths. Still she believes. When he telephones her to rescue him from a "rest home" where his father has confined him, she disregards, in his filthy apartment, his bed islanded and barricaded by empty bottles, releases him from "restraint" and flees with him out of the state. She leaves him to go back to her children and has no word of the man for weeks — and suffers. He has returned to the father from whom he fled.

There is much more before the woman and the man (they are never named in the book) finally part. He faces the future fortified by vermouth; she bleakly unsupported but determined to be free from the horrors and torments brought into her life by the alcoholic man she loves, and who loves her.

Although Jean Ariss has not told a pleasant story, The Shattered Glass may help persons unknowingly imprisoned. It is revealing truth unadorned by euphemistic or sentimental fripperies. It has sensitive perception coupled with devastating description; the power of understanding. —M. L.

FROM A LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg

The sister of Ernest Hemingway has done a book about him, a sort of family chronicle starring her famous brother. Marcelline Hemingway was only a little older than her brother and they were best friends all of his life. The book covers the early years only and ceases at the time of their father's death. The title is At The Hemingways.

We really don't know if we did right by the next book when we classified it with the cookbooks, but it has so many recipes that they overbalance the scale on the side of cookery. The title of the book is Stalking The Wild Asparagus, and it was written by Enell Gibbons. Mr. Gibbons is a man who believes in living off the land, and with this book to help you, doing it might not be so bad. He tells you how to hunt and recognize edible plants, how to prepare them and how to make from them what sound like delicious dishes. Whether or not the foods are tasty, the book is a friendly type of thing and should be enjoyed by all nature lovers. As I said, we put it with the cookbooks. It didn't seem to mind.

For a period of 30 years, James Agee carried on a very personal correspondence with an Episcopal clergyman named Flye, and now, seven years after Agee's death, these letters have been combined into a book called The Letters of James Agee to Father Flye. James Agee was nine years old when he first met Father Flye. He entered St. Andrews School for Boys where Father Flye was teaching. Their relationship was always one of respect and affection, and their long correspondence began after Agee left St. Andrews and went on to Phillips Exeter and preparation for entering Harvard. Father Flye tells us the correct pronunciation of the author's name. The accent is upon the A and it is as if you were saying the two letters A-G.

Bud Collier is a kindly man who regularly acts as master of ceremonies on television programs, and occasionally acts as a lay preacher in his home town in the East. He wrote four sermons in verse and they have been published in a small book entitled Thou Shalt Not Fear.

The man who wrote The Sacred Mushrooms has a new book called Beyond Telepathy. Dr. Andrija Puharich says that "Man has been exploring his mind since time began, and out of this has come all we know. In this work I give you the stories of normal men and women who have explored the far reaches of their minds, and who were sure enough of their findings to check them against the facts, and be checked by outside observers." Dr. Puharich's preface to the book is dated Carmel, California, April 1, 1960. No fooling, either.

Henry Miller writes about himself and his thoughts and ideas in Stand Still Like The Humming Bird. The book consists of 22 pieces about people, things, and other things.

For those who write for pay, we have Richard Wincor's new book From Ritual To Royalties, The Anatomy of Literary Property. The final chapter is on contracts, with examples, which should be most helpful.

And, finally, we have the Complete Round-The-World Cookbook compiled from recipes gathered by Pan American World Airways. So, even if you stay right at home, you can learn to cook your way around the world. Happy Concocting!!

Where There's Life

By Andre Hope

Did you ever have the lovely, languorous sensation that a sunny, summer, Saturday afternoon looked, smelled and tasted like ripe peaches? Well, I did, after being on duty as hostess at the art exhibit at the Fair the night before. I did, until my charming boss, known to many as Larry Rose, called to inform me that the Stuart Highlanders were in town. So, my fulsomely fruity day turned into a Tunes of Glory sort of night. The Highlanders, as you probably discovered Sunday, blow quite a bit of bagpipe and beat a really spine-tingling drum. As our house guests we entertained two of the Highlanders' lassies.

That night we attended the party at Fire Chief Bob Smith's more than hospitable home. Between concerts and maneuvers by the kilted clansmen (and, frankly, a kilt does something for a man. Most dashing thing to come along since hats with plumes and duels at dawn) we shared all sorts of marvelous foods and thirst quenchers with our hosts and among others, Bill and Gerry Smith of Kip's Market, Mrs. Lloyd Weer of the bank known as Crocker-Anglo, Mrs. Dorothy von Meier, planning commissioner and an A.F.A. friend of mine, and our good Mayor, Eben Whittlesey, accompanied by Regan who, in spite of the latest move to clothe animals, was wearing no tartan, but only a dignified expression.

Sunday morning, everyone was naturally expected to have a nice sleep until the Highlanders paraded down Ocean Avenue to their concert at the Forest Theater. So, we chose to have a fire, which brought our host of the night before, sirens shrieking, bells clanging, down to the house. Fortunately, we were extinguished in time for the parade and concert. Rod followed the marchers with Steve Crouch to take pictures, while I stayed in the vicinity of the Pine Inn to catch them piping back and into the inner court (to whet their whistles?). Jeanne McConnell joined me on the parade route. Having at least four clans to her credit, she was entitled to a tear or two; but you know, there's something about the skirling of the pipes that allows you the same release as an old Bette Davis movie; you don't weep gently—you bawl!

While all of this was going on, one of my favorite artists, Edith Dinkin, is engaged in wedding one of my favorite fellas, Larry Berkoben. Rose Brown, plus artist Marjorie Allen, are off to Hawaii; where possibly they will learn to do the Tahitian Twist. Neither of these events sound very Scottish to me, but then, very cosmopolitan are we. So much so, that I was not surprised to hear toasts being sung in Norwegian at Leavell's restaurant in the Carmel Valley the other evening. Couldn't resist talking to the gentleman doing the singing and discovered he was Carmelover, Dr. Rustad of the medical department, University of California at Berkeley, (one of Kay and Vern's favorite customers).

I will add that Leavell's is also my favorite restaurant for the week. I tasted a bit from each plate in our party and found it all excellent. Noted the 10 p.m. Specials on the gold menu and approved. I do like a restaurant that provides a late night choice, huskier than tidbits and lighter than dinner. Vern's cocktails are excellent, as always, and the wine list offers 52 domestic and imported ways to relax while listening to Charlie Parker at the piano bar. The decor is as tasty as the food.

Back there somewhere I mentioned this character who insists we clothe all naked animals. Frank Adams of Borden's thinks it an excellent idea. When you're deer hunting you can always say "Don't shoot that one — it's wearing a skirt." Personally, I am fascinated with bikinis for whales and porpoises. The mind reels considering bathing trunks for octopi. But best of all, can you see the ad for dairymen, "I dreamt I was butterfat champion in my matron-form bra?" I was going to give you a visitor's-eye view of our town this week, but after the Stuart Highlanders I'm afraid they'd think it was all a "pipe" dream!

Shaggy Dog Found

Topper is found.

Shortly after the Pine Cone asked two weeks ago if anyone had seen a shaggy dog, an unidentified lady returned Allen Kreger's lost part-beagle-part-poodle pet.

The next day Allen and Topper came to thank the Pine Cone for its help in reuniting them. Tomorrow, for the third time, Allen and his dog will leave for Frederick Military Academy in Virginia, and this time Topper's fare will be paid with money earned during the summer by Allen.

Hasta luego, amigos.

THE PINE CONE REGRETS

With the best of intentions the Pine Cone recently ran an advertisement on page 11 featuring reproductions of three paintings by E. Cashion MacLennan, well-known Carmel painter. Through an inadvertence credit for the paintings was not given, and it is to be hoped that this report will make amends for the unfortunate oversight, both to Mrs. MacLennan and our readers.

TASSAJARA SPRINGS

A SPA IN THE OLD TRADITION IN THE MOUNTAINS BETWEEN CARMEL VALLEY AND BIG SUR

Tassajara began business as a resort around 1880. Its character has not changed a great deal since that time. *It offers a comfortable retreat into a vast and spectacular wilderness area, sunshine, serenity and well seasoned food. The TV reception is nil, radio reception only fair.
Gentle recreations are encouraged. More strenuous ones are available. Its a wonderful place to unwind.

Bruce Leach Home

After a six-month-long ramble through Europe, his first, Bruce Leach, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Leach of Carmel, returned this week full of enthusiasm, especially for London, Paris, Rome, Copenhagen, Spain and Greece.

Bruce's adventures, shared with two college friends, included visits to a number of relatives in England, homeland of both his parents.

Vicky Moglia, Tom Yale Engaged

On Sunday in Santa Cruz, the engagement of Victoria Moglia to Thomas Hamilton Yale was announced. Vicky is the daughter of Mrs. Jack DeSouza of Santa Cruz and the late Carlo Moglia.

She graduated as an honor student from Santa Cruz High School and in June was awarded a bachelor of arts degree from San Jose State College where she was a member of Delta Pi Delta, art honorary society.

Her fiance, the son of Colonel and Mrs. Wesley W. Yale of Pebble Beach, is a Carmel High School graduate who also attended Monterey Peninsula College. He obtained a B.A. degree in zoology from San Jose State College this year, and in the fall will return to work towards a master's degree in the same subject.

Vicky will return to San Jose State College for postgraduate study in September. She and Tom, as yet, have set no date for their wedding.

Three Win Awards

Two Carmelites and a Carmel Valley resident were among civilian employes at Fort Ord honored recently by the Department of the Army.

Frank B. Herald and Mrs. Marion Parker, both of Carmel, won cash awards for efficiency suggestions.

Mrs. Henry Blend, Carmel Valley, won a check and a certificate for sustained superior job performance.

Handing out the honors at ceremonies this month was Maj. Gen. O. C. Troxel, Jr., Fort Ord's commandant.

Parties For Pamela

Among a final round of last-minute festivities in honor of Carmel Valley's Pamela Gamble, who wears the "Miss California" crown this year, were two on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry R. Gillett of Rancho Del Monte Club entertained some 150 of Pamela's friends with a mid-afternoon swimming party, prior to a 3 to 7 p.m. reception sponsored by the Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce at Carmel Valley Inn.

On the roster of special guests at the former, held from 3 to 5 p.m. were, in addition to Pamela, her mother, Mrs. H. G. Gamble, and Miss Linda Gray, who was "Miss Palo Alto" in the recent beauty queen competition in Santa Cruz.

Along with the guests, a phalanx of photographers and technicians from Channel 11, Miss California enjoyed hotdogs and punch with the swimmers. For the afternoon she wore a print sun dress, blue and green. "Stunning," her observers reported.

The title-winning Valley girl was scheduled to leave this week for Atlantic City and the Miss America Pageant.

Heaths Give Party

At a cocktail party yesterday evening in their Carmel home, Dr. and Mrs. Scott Heath introduced a group of their friends to William K. (Bill) Stewart of Carmel Highlands, Democratic candidate for Congress.

Among out-of-town guests at the Heath party were Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Rutman of Connecticut and Carmel, who recently arrived here from the East.

Foreign Affairs Buffet

A buffet of chicken, curried rice and salad was a recent event for members and friends of the foreign affairs discussion group at the Highlands home of Honey Williams, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Russell Williams.

The party, which represented a final fling for the group made up mostly of 1962 Carmel High School seniors before it disperses to various colleges in the fall, was also attended by CHS teachers Peter Lyon, Raymond Gere, Ray Stumbo and Chuck Moody.

The Strums Have A Son

Arthur Connelly Thornton Strum was born 10 August at Monterey Peninsula Community Hospital. He is the first son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Strum of Carmel, and has a sister, Sarah, who is four years old. The baby's father teaches electrical engineering at the U. S. Naval Postgraduate School, and the family has made its home here for four years.

Proud grandparents, who were Carmel visitors last winter, are Mr. and Mrs. John C. Thornton of Terre Haute, Indiana.

Full House At Mrs. Goodwin's

Air Force Captain and Mrs. Thomas Pochari of Fairborn, Ohio, with their two children, Tommy, four, and Victoria, 19 months old, arrived in Carmel last week to spend a month as houseguests of Mrs. Pochari's sister, Mrs. Sylvia Goodwin. As Diane and Sylvia Thorne, the sisters grew up in Carmel, Diane attending Catalina School and Sylvia Carmel High School.

Welcoming their cousins to Carmel are John, 11, Laura, eight, Richard, six, Robert, three, and 19-month-old Sylvia Goodwin.

Nietos Had "Wonderful" Trip

An enthusiastic report from Mrs. August R. Nieto, recently back with Mr. Nieto from several weeks touring the Northwest and Canada, tells of their driving along the Olympic Peninsula, visiting Victoria, the Fair, then up into the Canadian Rockies, "so beautiful they are out of this world." On the way they joined forces with Cliff Cook at Revelstoke, British Columbia, and journeyed as far as Jasper and Banff National Parks, where a high spot of the trip was riding over the Columbia icefields in a snowmobile.

On the return trip they visited Yellowstone ("there are lots of other things there besides bears"), Reno and Tahoe. Accompanying the Nietos were Mr. Nieto's sister, Mrs. Silvina Charlesworth, and her daughter, Becky.

Meet Jack Grissom

May we introduce Jack Grissom, new owner of the Howard Brunn Shop in the Pine Inn, who recently became a Carmelite after moving family and household here from San Anselmo in Marin County?

Jack, former sales manager of the Vacu-Dry Corporation at Emeryville, and his wife, Phyllis, are occupying the former Spalding home at Carmelo and Fourth.

With them are four of their six sons and daughters: Wendy, 13; Cindy, 12; Peter, 10, and Anthony, 2. Another son, John, is a student at the University of California at Berkeley. The Grissoms' eldest, Phyllis, member of the Peace Corps staff in Washington, D.C., will visit Carmel next month, her parents say, while on a recruitment tour for the corps.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

How the works of Christ Jesus proved his sonship with God and illustrated what God's power can do for man will be brought out at Christian Science church services Sunday.

The Lesson-Sermon entitled "Christ Jesus" will have as the Golden Text this verse from the Bible (I John 4): "We have seen and do testify that the Father sent the Son to be the Saviour of the world."

Selections from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will include (p. 333): "Christ expresses God's spiritual, eternal nature. The name is synonymous with Messiah, and alludes to the spirituality which is taught, illustrated, and demonstrated in the life of which Christ Jesus was the embodiment."

Pine Cone Is Playboy's Playmate Of The Month

Playboy, the girly magazine of some pretensions, features this month a story by a chap named Jack Finney, entitled, Hey, Look At Me!

A reading of the story leads to the conclusion that the title is an imploring cry rather than a swaggering demand. However, the point is that the hero, a book critic, complains of being denounced on the street as a puling idiot who ought to be writing News of our Pets for the Carmel Pine Cone instead of criticizing the literary accomplishments of authors.

After that the story wanders off into a graveyard, bumps up against a ghost and stumbles about for a while before expiring in fits of tedium.

The Pine Cone never had a column entitled News of Our Pets. However, in 1941 the Pine Cone did have a column entitled The Dogs Do Bark, apparently in anticipation of Playboy and Mr. Finney.

Klaumann for Sheriff.— Carmel Police Chief Clyde Klaumann, running for sheriff, spent time at the Monterey County Fair in a booth purchased by supporters and staffed by hostesses including Mrs. Jack Clayton, Mrs. Jay Clancy, Mrs. Dorothy Hisgen, Mrs. Reed Pollock, Mrs. Claudine Van Fleet, and Mrs. Dexter Whitcomb.

America and Women

By Marjorie R. Longwell

No one will be quite the same after reading AMERICA AND WOMEN.

You will walk beside MARGARET BRENT (1601-1670)—the Catholic girl who drilled her settlers and marched them toward an enemy and saved Maryland.

You'll enjoy the love story of ANNE HUTCHINGSON (1591-1653) and applaud that astonishing "career girl" of early S. Carolina: ELIZA LUCAS PINCKNEY.

You'll wish you were as brave as was SUSAN B. ANTHONY and be astonished to read that MARY BAKER EDDY founded a newspaper at the age of 87.

There are 7 women in all—and they helped to make U. S. A. great.

Everyone's reading AMERICA AND WOMEN. Why not send for your copy today?

The agenda, otherwise, is filled out with routine matters, many of them continued from previous months, the most captious of which may very well be Merle Murphy's petition that the council get worked up into a fit of preventing dogs from running at large and "barking excessively." The delicate and baffling question of how far is "at large," and how often or how loud is "excessive" rests at the moment in the Committee on Public Welfare, consisting of Councilmen Frank Putnam and Francis Whitaker.

Offstreet parking: 20,800 cars

Start from the Wells Fargo Bank on Eggers Drive, go south on Fremont Boulevard through Warm Springs and you'll see a giant skeleton of steel just off the Nimitz Freeway. By summer 1963, this new General Motors plant — their first combined production unit in this area — will employ 4000 people. At peak production, Buicks, Oldsmobiles, Pontiacs, Chevrolet cars and trucks, as well as GMC trucks, will be driven into their pre-shipping "parking lot" at the rate of 20,800 every 20 working days.

The combination of developed land, skilled labor, and good transportation brought GM to Fremont, as it brought the big Ford Motor Company plant to nearby Milpitas, as it is bringing new industries in increasing numbers to the entire southern bend of the Bay. Industry needs power and people, raw materials and markets. Here there is a rare combination of all.

Throughout Northern California there is growing room for industry and individual, for native and newcomer, and tomorrow looks even better than today.

We have been a part of this diverse, dynamic economy since 1852. And we know this Wells Fargo country from San Francisco to the Sierra, from Eureka to King City. It has always been our own special land, its people and its promise our first concern.

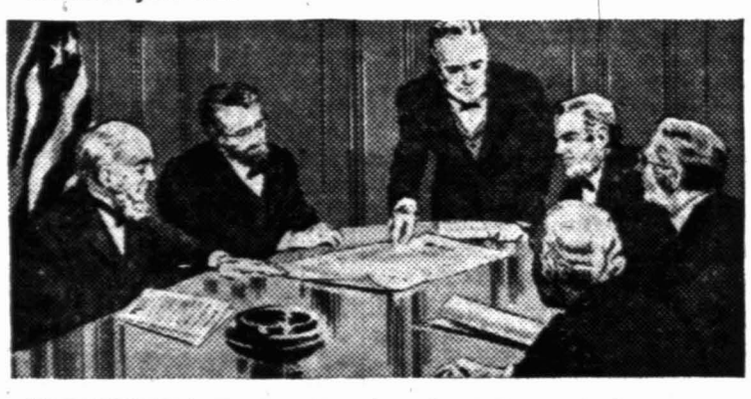
It happened 100 YEARS ago

The oldest incorporated trade association in the country, the United States Brewers Association, was organized in 1862 . . . the same year that



IN CALIFORNIA, the San Francisco Stock Exchange Board was founded, and opened to frenzied trading in the Virginia City mining stocks. Whether stocks went up or down, California's financiers knew that, for sparkling refreshment, beer was a good investment.

For then as now, beer was the traditional beverage of moderation. But beer means more than enjoyment to our state. The Brewing Industry pays more than 12 million dollars in taxes to the State of California each year, money that helps support our hospitals, schools and parks.

TODAY, in its centennial year, the United States Brewers Association still works constantly to assure maintenance of high standards of quality and propriety wherever beer and ale are served.
